- Received significant press, including international radio and television, for the Microsoft Windows Embedded Student Challenge second place win in 2006. The following statement was made on August 4, 2006 by Randy Fillmore of USF Media Relations:
  - "The 'intelligent scarecrow' named J.J. – designed and built by four USF College of Engineering Computer Science and Engineering students to protect both the investment of aqua-farmers and the lives of birds that may prey upon their fish – placed second in Microsoft’s Third Annual Windows Embedded Student Challenge in 2006. Filmed by a crew from Discovery TV, Canada, and making two appearances on local TV (channels 10 and 13), over three months the smart scarecrow was featured in several radio interviews and appeared in newspapers, magazines, and websites throughout the U.S., Canada, Europe, Australia, the United Kingdom, the Middle East, and Asia, including India and China. J.J., the students who created him, and their faculty mentor, Ken Christensen, became the most widely traveled and longest lasting positive media story in USF history.”
